What is a ground support fixing system?

The ground support fixing system, which is fitted to all our memorials, has been designed and tested by the National Association of Memorial Masons to give extra security to the usual method of erecting memorials. It consists of stainless steel tubes and threads passing from the base through the concrete foundation and into the ground. This attaches all parts of the memorial to one another and anchors the memorial securely. Some local authorities now insist that these are fitted, but others (especially church authorities) do not.

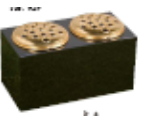

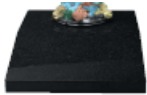

However, we fit them in all cases.

We recognise that headstones are lasting tributes which are expected to stand for a long time, without the risk of accidents, caused by their instability

The support method ensures this.
